STORYTELLER SERVES UP "HOME-FRIED TALES"

Professional storyteller LYN FORD says her stories are "well known, unknown, home-grown, and my own!"

Lyn will entertain her audience on Thursday, April 6 at noon in Reed Hall Room 160. She is keeping alive the oral tradition that is a cherished part of her childhood memories. Her storytelling is flavored with her love and respect for her African, European, and Native American ancestry. A member of the National Storytelling Association, the National Association of Black Storytellers, and the Storytellers of Central Ohio, Lyn is an editorial consultant for the "Adventures in Storytelling" newsletter. She has recently published a book of children's poems, "Squishy, Squashy, Wiggly-Washy."

STUDENTS INVITED TO ATTEND LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

The Sinclair Ohio Fellows Leadership Development Program is sponsoring a leadership conference for college students on Saturday, April 15. The David H. Ponitz Sinclair Center (Building 12) on the campus of Sinclair Community College in downtown Dayton will be the site of this day long program. Participation is limited to 90 and registration deadline is Friday, April 7. The fee of $15 covers two workshops, all materials, continental breakfast, buffet lunch, and an informal reception. Workshops will focus on the various aspects of communication and interaction with governments from the local to the international level, the growing international markets for both large and small businesses, and the interpersonal skills necessary to all intercultural exchanges. This conference is one opportunity to find out how individuals and businesses can and must work with neighbors around the corner and around the globe to lead the way to a better life. For more information check with the Student Activities Office (GA066.)
